

Flying these days is not a juous experience without any moreinconveniences! Every plane is packed, more families with many children are flying (some with only 1 poor parent to control them), no pillows or blankets are available, the drink is a small glass of soda with 4 peanuts, and the noise of the engines and people just talking is plenty. But to add the use of cell phones on flts would finish off the already unpleasant experience! Everyone talks too loudly on cell phones even in quiet areas, so one can only imagine the level of 150 conversations going on at the same time for hours on end! If this happens, Sky Mall magazine had better offer the Bose ($300.00) headphones for purchase in their catalogue. They will make a killing!

Thank you for hearing me out!
